Musical comedy sizzler College on campus next week

Things are going to be sizzling when "Roman Rhythm" hits the boards on Dec. 14 and 15. This is what director Tommy Bond says about the forthcoming LASC musical comedy.

The story was written by Mark Rodgers, well known on campus for several one act and one three act plays produced by the LACC drama department in recent years.

The action takes place in 500 B.C. (or thereabouts) with some events that would make the Roman's ears burn if they saw them. John Kimbro is Nero, the "boy" with a secret, that only his son (Gene Collins) is in on. Plaudius, Nero's handy man and "keeper of the slaves torturing", is played by Penrod Dennis. Soothsayer, a lovely young thing, that is looking for a husband, but can't get one, is being played by Beverly

The Fool, that knows abouteverything, is being performed by Bobs Watson. Bud Moss, Joe Feinwick, and Norman Vroom are three students from "Roman State College"

The rest of the cast is made up of specialities which have been worked into the dialogue. Pat Wheeler is Patricia, the girl who has been living with the Mandrakes; Bob Mahoney is a student of Roman State College; and Chuck Gordon is a prisoner. The Princess from Cashdeformity. Her mother (Gertrude Lawrence), fearing that her daughter will become an old maid, persuades Tom (Arthur Kennedy), her son, to bring home a "gentleman caller" for Laura. Tom brings home a friend, (Kirk Douglas), and it isn't long before the "gentleman caller" gets the drift that he's "marriage bait". Before he leaves, however, he succeeds in helping Laura overcome some of her shyness. In the end, Tom joins the Merchant Marines to find a life of his own, and Laura finds another gentleman caller on her own.

The cast was well chosen. Jane Wyman is good in the "made for her" role. . . . that of a helpless, pathetic, sweet thing. The powerful role of the mother is not lessened by Gertrude Lawrence. Arthur Kennedy shows off his superior capabilities as the brother and narrator. Kirk Douglas fits the part of the "gentleman caller" exceedingly well.

Warner Brothers surprised me with this picture. It follows the play fairly accurately except for a few interpretations here and there. In fact it even sacrifices big gate drawing for art's sake. That is, the picture leans toward an intellectual, realistic and non-glamourizational approach. . . which incidentally, does not appeal to the masses. It's the same old battle between commercialism

Campus Personality

Marty Halperin

The above face is probably a very familar one to you for it belongs to one of our most active students-Marty Halperin.

Since coming to State College, in the fall of 1949, Marty has been a leader on this campus, having held the office of Junior class treasurer, rally commissioner, cheer leader, member of Kappa Phi Sigma, and is now vice president of the student body and a Blue Key member. Marty also worked as co-chairman on the Crusade for Freedom drive.

Marty's amiable manner and ready smile has won him many friends and followers. His great aim is to make State College well known. "The biggest problem at State College is a lack of student spirit," Marty claims. "If everyone works for and with the school, it won't be long before we make a name for State College . . . and a good one too."

Marty, who is 23 years old and was born in Saginaw, Michigan, is a major in elementary education and plans to return to State for graduate work. He enjoys rifelry, progressive music, and driving at night with his car top down. (Take note, girls) Because of his love for travel, Marty takes weekend jaunts out side of the state..

Talent scouts sign queen

Once upon a time there was a very pretty girl who went quietly about her tasks on the State College campus. She always sat in class without saying much, and she seldom went to George's or Cavaliere's, and as a result of this very few people paid much attention to her.

Then one day a very kind young man said to himself, "Boy, ain't she a dish! More people should know this gal." (He was a very unselfish young man) So he put her name on a piece of paper torn from the College Times and slipped it into the junior box in B G. And guess what happened then? She was interviewed by a group of people who decided she should be made Queen.

And sure enough, she became Queen of the Junior Prom, an important social event. Her picture was in all the papers and she became famous.

Talent scouts from Hollywood fought their way through crowds of admirers to sign her for movies, television offers came by the dozens (this is a modern fairy tale), and a hand-some millionaire pleaded with her to become his wife and live in a Bel-Air mansion, surrounded by jewels, fur coats, and swimming pools.

The lovely young lady lived happily ever after, and when she grew old, she told her grandchildren their favorite story about how she became Queen at the Junior Prom.

Los Angeles State College basketball coach Sax Elliot will experiment with a radical innovation that could completely change our present system of basketball officiating at Saturday evening (Dec. 9) game with La Verne on the LACC floor. Tip-off is at 8 p.m.

Elliot has removed the two officials from the floor and transferred them to platforms behind the glass backboards at each end of the court. From this vantage point, 14 feet above the court, they will call the

A third official will carry out the mechanical aspects of officiating, such as on jump balls and out-of-bounds plays. He will call no fouls, however.

Each official will follow his half of the court only. Elliot is optimistic that the official will have a far better perspective of what's going on from his perch overlooking the action than is the case on the floor. Instead of having to run up and down while trying to keep up with the fast-moving athletes, the official remains stationary in a spot where he can best see the action.

Elliot figures that, since an official will always be in the same spot, his calls will be standardized. Too, putting the striped shirts on the 14-foot platform gets them out of the way of players and fans. It should also enable them to avoid the abuse tossed out by the coaches and fans.

Keglers again in first position

L.A. State set the alleys on fire as they blanked out UCLA to take all games, and once again jumped up into a first place tie with LACC at Santa Monica Bowl last Sunday night.

State shot a tremendous 2708 series for the 3 games-914, 880, and 914.

This is the highest team series bowled thus far in the intercollegiate league this season. Leroy Waco blasted away for a 605 series to take high individual series for the locals.

Hal Wagner came through with a nice 212 game to take the high individual game.

Corrigan, Witte State announces pace Diablos

Scoring almost at will Los Angeles State College's "Bouncing Bandits" rolled to a lopsided 79-39 victory over the visiting Long Beach State quintet, Wednesday night on the local hardwoods.

Coach Sax Elliot's lads thus rolled to their fifth victory in six starts this season. Norm Witte and Hugh Corrigan paced the locals in the scoring column with 14 points each. Howard Lyon, Long Beach forward paced his team with 10 markers.

The Devils led at half time 42-19. Coach Elliot cleared the bench quite frequently with eleven of the twelve men sharing in the scoring.

The 79 points registered by L. A. State was second highest in the school's history. Last year at the Santa Barbara Armory the locals hit the jackpot for 83 points against Westmont College of Santa Barbara.

Tomorow night the locals host the La Verne College Cagers to the sixth home fracas of the season. The tip-off is scheduled for 8 nm in the Men's gym

La Verne moves into competition

Tomorrow night Coach Sax Elliot's casabmen host the Leopards of La Verne College to a game in the Men's gym. This will be the seventh game of the current season for the Diablos and the sixth on the home court.

In a game played last Tuesday night the Leaping Leopards defeated S.C. Bible College 59-

Leading the visitors' attack will be center Bill O'Neill, and forwards Bill Landis and Pat Colburn. In the guard spots Coach Dwight Hanawalt will start speedy Bob Chavez and the "old mainstay" Darryl Brandt. Brandt, a letterman from last season's play, led his teammates with over 300 points for individual high point honors.

All of the starting lineup with the exception of Pat Colburn were members of the 1950 La Verne football team.

This will mark the second game of the season for the Leopards so they will be starting with one victory against no defeats. According to Coach Hanawalt, the prospects look good for an excellent season for the La Verne cagers.

TENNIS PLAYERS ATTENTION

All prospective tennis players who wish to tryout for the 1951 State College team are urged to meet with Coach Felix Jummonville in B 19 at 11 a. m. Friday, Dec. 8. Come on you Jake Kramer's.

tourney pairings

First round games in the first annual Los Angeles State College basketball tournament to be held Dec. 19-21 inclusive were announced by Sax Elliot, tournament director.

In the upper bracket Cal Poly of San Luis Obispo will meet La Verne College and L.B. State will play Santa Barbara College. In the lower brackets Los Angeles State draws Cal Poly of San Dimas and Sacramento State faces Humbolt

At the present time the team to beat looks very much like Coach Ed Jorgenson's Cal Poly Mustangs from San Luis Obispo. Last week the Cal Poly team won the Redlands tourney by defeating Pomona 71-49, Redlands 63-42, and defeating Whittier College for the championship 60-52. Previous to this the Mustangs spanked their Alumni 54-39 and were defeated by the powerful Santa Maria Dukes Leading the San Luis Obispo quintet is Ed Nichols, who was voted the most valuable player in the Redlands Tourney. Nichols played for Long Beach City College last year at guard and has been shifted to forward this season by Coach Jorgenson. Nichols has a very sharp shooting eye. Also making the All-Redlands team was center, Doug Strathearn. Last year Doug was voted a second team spot on the All-CCAA team. Another transfer to the agriculture school is Ventura JC's high scoring forward Frank Kerker, who should help the Mustangs no end this coming season.

Another team to watch will be the Sacramento State College Hornets. The Capital City five opened their season last week by giving Nibs Price's California Bears a scare before losing 49-39. The Hornets led at the half 26-21. Sacramento defeated L.A. State last season 74-56.

Santa Barbara College's quintet will be paced by Otie Scruggs, forward and Ted Jacobs, high scoring guard. Coach Willie Wilton's Gauchos defeating Pomona 45-43 to win the consolation finals in the Redlands tournament. Santa Barbara lost *to Occidental 65-47 in their opening round game and edged Chapman 53-51. The Channel City boys might cause a little trouble before the three day tournament ends.

Remember students and faculty are urged to get their tickets to this big tournament now in the Graduate Manager's office Ad 107 or phone NO 33201 Extension 15 for reservations. Don't forget the dates-December 19-21 inclusive. Hurry Hurry Hurry!!!

Pledges at Phi Delta stage Turnabout Day

Phi Delta pledges took full revenge on their fraternity actives on Turnabout Day last week.

Actives were assigned to obtain such things as Mexican jumping beans, exotic brands of eigarettes, and a number of unmentionable articles. These had to be presented at the evening meeting, reigned over by the pledges.

As each member was called into the meeting he was raked over by the pledges and then gently tied with rope about his hands and feet. The squirming frat men were driven to the hills above Malibu Beach where they were set free to return as best they could.

Pledges will be informally initiated this weekend, when it is expected that actives will exact vengeance.

The first tournament to be held will be a ladder competition to rate the abilities of the members. Upon completion of this tournament, a championship singles match is planned for the spring semester. The club has set a minimum of ten hours of practice and play for each player in order to be eligible in this tournament.

Any girl interested in becoming a member of the club and participating in the tournament may do so by contacting Dr. Frances Cake, or the secretary of the Physical Education Department in Engineering.
