Welles' 'Macbeth' discussed in class

A new approach to "Macbeth" was presented by Mr. James Wilson, associate producer of the film currently being shown in Hollywood. Mr. Wilson, for fifteen years Orson Welles' partner and co-worker in the Mercury Theatre and other enterprises, spoke before Dr. Sterling Kincaid's class in Shakespeare. Augmented by many student and faculty visitors, the group met Monday at 2 p.m. in the Green Room.

Some of the problems confronting the producer in adapting an Elizabethan play to the filmic medium were discussed by Mr. Wilson who saw the subject as essentially in conflict with the chosen means of projection. Stressing the experimental, abstract, almost surrealist quality of the film, he described the script and type production given the movie as the expression of one man, its creator, Orson Welles, rather than as the brainchild of the research department of the company.

In weighing the values of the complex word images inherent in the poetry against the possible values of the visual images to be obtained, the story line constantly was interpreted, revised, and transposed by Welles to meet the requirements of the filmic medium.

"Not since the showing of 'The Passion of Saint Joan', twenty-five years ago," Mr. Wilson said, "had such an attempt been made to force the audience to forget for the moment the modern world of Wilshire Boulevard and enter the unreal world of the playhouse through the magical rapport created by the theatre."

Conscious effort was made to avoid duplication of any of the details of previous productions of Macbeth as applied to background materials used, staging, costumes, deletions from the original text, etc. The criticism of this movie as only the filming of a play cannot be made with reference to Macbeth for it was produced as a film with full recognizance given the particular problems imposed by the medium.

According to Mr. Wilson, Welles sees and presents Macbeth essentially as a man in conflict with himself and his conscious in a struggle of good against evil.

Seyler emphasizes liability of teacher

Responsibilities to yourself, to the children, and to the profession are the particular responsibilities that a person undertakes upon becoming a teacher," said Dr. Louise Seyler, assistant superintendent of the central Los Angeles school district, at the recent C.S.T.A. meeting.

"You should learn all you can as the main responsibility to yourself," continued Dr. Seyler. "There are new educational ideas all the time, and a teacher should keep up with these ideas and methods. Always be alert for new concepts from other people. The teachers in your college have suggestions that would be invaluable to you in your teaching."

"Most important in teaching, you should like your work, and enjoy working with children. No person should enter a profession they do not like. You can't do an efficient job of teaching if you don't enjoy working with children."

Dr. Seyler explained that the responsibility is to the children. A teacher should understand that children are not immature adults, they are entitled to certain respects and should not be judged by adult standards.

"Remember that as a teacher," emphasized Dr. Seyler, "you will be working with children's minds. Many things impress the child's mind that the adult does not realize. The experience you provide may influence the child in later life. Thus a good basic foundation of the "3R's" is important."

As for discipline, Dr. Seyler suggested that if the teacher has her day's program well planned in advance, it will cut down on discipline problems. Children that have something to keep them busy will not have time to get into trouble. Dr. Seyler also stated that teachers should keep their voices down, as a soft voice will command more attention than a loud voice.

"You should be proud of your profession," Dr. Seyler continued. "Be interested in other people. Know the other teachers at your school. They can help you, and you may be able to aid them."

"Have a sense of humor, to be able to laugh at yourself is essential to your teaching." Concluded Dr. Seyler.

Sociology club presents 'Hop'

Today at 2:30 in the Student Union, the sociological society of State College presents its first semi-annual "Scholarship Hop".

Peggy Lee, Mel Torme, and Kay Brown, all well-known recording stars, will entertain with some of their more famous hit songs. Music for dancing will be provided by Tak Shindo's band.

Although this is a State College function, admission is also open to students of City College, providing they have purchased associate memberships in the sociological society. These may be obtained by paying twenty-five cents at the entrance to the dance.

The purpose of this dance is to raise money to form a scholarship fund, with which to aid outstanding students majoring in sociology.

The sociological society is planning a series of lectures relevant to the field of sociology. Guest speakers will include many of the outstanding men in the field of human relations in this area.

Graduate office filled by Johnson

At a recent, informal meeting of the graduate class, Bob Johnson was elected to the office of public relations. Other business included discussion of homecoming and future class activities.

President "Dutch" Holland urges all members to attend the next meeting on Nov. 6 at 12 in SLH 201. The officers also include Bill Meacham, vice-president; and Bernie Cogly, secretary-treasurer.

Work-study program attempts to activate Applied Arts function

Initiated this semester at State College, the Alternate Work-Study Plan seeks to make effective, Section 2 of the Education Code of the State of California which relates to the purposes and functions of the college.

These purposes and functions are set forth as "... those which serve the needs of the community and of the State and primarily include, but shall not be limited to, the training of students for gainful occupations in the arts and sciences as related to business and industry, and in furtherance of such purposes, the college shall initiate the establishment of cooperative relationships with industry and business looking toward the development of programs of training which will relate practical experience with classroom instruction."

Since its inception forty years ago, the plan has been very successful in many colleges east of the Mississippi. At present, seventy-five schools in that part of the country offer similar programs to some 10,000 students who are employed by 3,000 firms in widely diversified industries.

The Alternate Work-Study Plan is a cooperative endeavor on the part of industry and the colleges to give on-the-job training to under-graduates. Unlike the usual training given to novices, the Plan attempts to acquaint the student with a wide variety of tasks in a particular industry in order to prepare him upon graduation for a possible position in a managerial capacity.

College credits, varying in number with the hours worked, are given for such employment. Strict supervision is exercised by industry which is required to make reports on individuals so employed and by the colleges through use of coordinators. These coordinators may be labor specialists, counselors, or faculty members in related fields.

While the purpose of the plan primarily is educational rather than vocational, students may accomplish several objectives by participation therein; they may earn pay equal if not more than that obtainable in other employment and at the same time learn the rudiments of the industry or profession they have chosen. In addition, college credit may be obtained. Much trial and error after graduation is eliminated by such a program. Transfer from one industry to another without the usual loss of time may thus be accomplished.

An intensive psychological testing program suggested by industry in cooperation with the Psychology Department of the college further attempts to eliminate many haphazard choices on the part of students entering industry. Furthermore, such a testing program incorporating the requirements of a particular industry as well as other tests believed necessary by the Psychology Department, facilitates cooperation with industry and consequently placement of larger numbers of students.

November set for fundamentals test

A "fundamentals" test will be given in November for elementary and secondary education students who either failed to qualify for directed teaching or haven't yet taken the test, according to Dr. Joseph Stanley, director of secondary student teaching. A definite test date will be posted soon.

Health and x-ray reports for many directed teaching applicants have not been received in the secondary education department, stated Dr. Stanley. Education students are reminded that all application directives must have been completed before final processing of records may be accomplished.

Men to reign over women

The women of State College are once again to be treated as all women should be. These "things" will be the subject of just ridicule and righteous indignation throughout MEN'S WEEK.

November 13 to November 17 will be the period of decreeing and convincing these female "things" of the superiority of men. The week's festivities will include noon activities daily, a spaghetti dinner, a beauty contest and float parade, the theme being "Woman is the root of all evil," and the Hermit's Holiday Dance. The beard contest this year will have dire consequences for all men not participating.

Letters to editor

Dear Editor,

As we all agree, it is school spirit which makes a college. All of us are well acquainted with the familiar question—"State? Where's that?" We talk about it, gripe about it, and yet, (with the exception of a few spirited students) do nothing about it.

Students claim there is poor spirit on campus. They say it is because there is not enough to hold students together. They say we need a rooters' section. They say—and yet, it is these same students who would not lift a finger in doing something about it. It is the familiar case of "Let George do it!"

But the case is not hopeless. Something can be done. Right now the ICC is working on plans for an organized rooting section but they can't do it alone. They need student support, and by support I mean both physical and vocal.

There are many jobs open to spirit-minded students. Without involving themselves in the actual work of campaigns, dances, etc., they can show their spirit by supporting these activities.

We mustn't be afraid to volunteer for a job. One person will assume a chairmanship of a committee to find himself without a committee because those individuals who are willing to work are afraid to offer their services. We must try to keep in mind that to have true spirit we must work together; that any offering on our part will be greatly appreciated.

We all have one goal—to make Los Angeles State College known and highly regarded. It will be a simple job if we all pitch in and support our leaders instead of just agreeing that the job should be done. And as the saying goes—"This means you!"

Signature withheld by request.

Secondary openings outlined by Reeves

Job opportunities for prospective teachers are currently to be found in the fields of science, mathematics, girl's physical education industrial arts and home making, according to Mr. Claude L. Reeves, assistant superintendent of the Los Angeles city school district, division of secondary education.

Speaking at a meeting of the Los Angeles city secondary school assistant superintendents with the Los Angeles State College secondary education staff, and the chairmen of departments, Mr. Reeves further stated that social studies, English, and foreign language are not presently stressed as immediate teaching opportunities.

"The meeting resulted in a basis for further cooperative action between the departments of the city and the state," stated Dr. Joseph Stanley, State College director of secondary student teaching, and one of the principal speakers.

The next meeting will be Monday, Nov. 6 at 4 in AD 202.

Work-study program

Industrial Education, State College anticipates a gradual change from the present 70-30 ratio of education majors to others when the program gathers momentum. No reduction in either the Education Department's program or the number of students enrolled under this program is contemplated. However, the Alternate Work-Study Plan is geared to attract large numbers of students in many fields of endeavor.

Mr. Fetty who specializes in the manufacturing and industrial fields, formerly was a colonel acting as chief liaison officer for the Air Force in charge of technical training all of non-flying personnel. He recently completed a dissertation for his doctorate to be awarded in June by USC on "An Alternate Work-Study Program for the Los Angeles Area." He is assisted in his work by Eugene Kinnett, former faculty member, who handles the fields of merchandising, accounting, and general office work.

1700 questionnaires as to possible cooperation were sent to all companies in the Los Angeles area employing 50 or more persons. Several hundred replies already have been received. Through personal interviews, contacts have been made in the following fields: aircraft, steel, oil, meat packing, baking, rubber, merchandizing, insurance, and aluminum.

Many jobs are available for students meeting the requirements of 1.0 average in scholarship, recommendation by three teachers and one employer, and a clean record with the registrar's office. College credit may still be obtained this semester by students participating in this program.

Educator travels far to join State College staff

Out of the cold north country of Alberta, Canada, to the mild, world famous climate of Southern California, comes another of Canada's favored sons, Dr. Delmar Oviatt, blue-eyed Canadian citizen newly-arrived on campus, is superintendent of elementary student teaching at State College.

Oviatt was superintendent of schools for Alberta province, Canada for 2 years and director of elementary education for 3 years.

Pledges Joanne Sherwood and Marian Marks presented a skit while the guests were served hot dogs and soft drinks. Prizes for costumes were awarded Betty Grossman and Dorothy Kapelowitz.

Picnic plans for November were announced by Naomi Peskind, president.

In the latter capacity, he had the job of choosing textbooks used in the schoolroom.

"I gave the final judgement, but relied on the opinion of many teachers in the schools that gave them a trial. The whole operation of approving a textbook requires several years."

He received his B.A. at the University of Alberta at Edmonton, capitol of Alberta, and his masters and doctorate at Stanford. While attending Stanford he majored in social studies, history, and curriculum and taught at Menlo J.C.

In Alberta, Oviatt taught in rural schools for 3 years, junior high school 3 years, and was teacher principal in high school 4 years. Last year he taught at Washington State College at Pullman. "Alberta has progressive education and the curriculum is very similar to that of California," said Oviatt.

He now lives in Glendale with his wife and two small daughters. "I am very pleased with Southern California and have bought a home in Glendale. I hope to settle here permanently."

Shooting and fishing were Oviatt's favorite sports in Canada. "The geese and ducks were thick up there. I hunted them on lakes or in the fields and there were so many that I just shot the large, green headed mallards.

"It gets as cold as 50 degrees below zero around Edmonton, but infrequently. The temperature in the winter averages 20 degrees below in the day time and generally drops to 40 degrees below at night.

During the war, many American service men were stationed in Edmonton. It is the jump off place for bush pilots supplying the northern wilderness and Alaska. Airlines from the east use it on their way to the Orient and it marks the beginning of the Alcan highway to Alaska."

In his present position, Oviatt places students in the various Los Angeles grammar schools as directed teachers. He contacts the schools, makes the arrangements, and keeps tab on how well the directed teachers are doing. "This is the most important phase of the potential teacher's training," said Oviatt. In addition, he conducts one class in Ed. 106, principals in elementary education.

'American Portraits' title of Mullins' score

"Four American Portraits" is the title of the selection being written for the a cappella choir by Hugh Mullins, State College music instructor. The composition is based on a series of poems written by Stephen Vincent Benet on the lives of Thomas Jefferson, John Quincy Adams, Daniel Boone, and Abraham Lincoln.

Harriers win one then lose another

State College's distancemen competed in two cross-country meets last week winning one and losing the other. The first was a tri-meet at San Dimas with teams from Cal Poly, L.A. State and Mt. San Antonio entering. The course was treacherous and difficult with an up-hill grind most of the way, with the resultant times much lower than average for a 2.6 mile course. Winner was Barton Graves of Mt. San Antonio with a time of 19m. 15s. Jim Strigle and Norman Gauthier of State finished second and third in 19:25 and 19:38 respectively. Jack Swinburn was fifth, Tex Averitt, ninth and Angelo Teresa finished eleventh. Final score was L.A. State, 27; Mt. San Antonio, 37; Cal Poly (San Dimas), 62.

Last Saturday the Campbellmen traveled to San Diego State for a dual meet on the Aztec course. The host team placed the first six men across the line for a 15-55 win. Console of San Diego State finished first in 9:57. The first man finishing for L.A. State was Jack Swinburn, placing seventh in 11:14 followed by Norman Gauthier, Bob O'Rourke, James Bell and Nick Raino. Also competing were Ed Washington and Tom Baer. Final tally was San Diego State, 15 Los Angeles, 55.

Intra Mural Tournament

Intra mural activities were inaugurated last week when the various clubs and fraternities on campus participated in the preliminary round of the Intra mural basketball tournament. In the first game the Infirmary Five defeated the DDD's 27-16. Halftime found the score 16-5 in favor of the winning team. High point honors went to Jim Hanley of the losers and Marv Jaffe of the Infirmary quintet with 11 points each.

The second game was scheduled between Rho Delta Chi and Phi Delta, the Phi Delt emerging the victors by reason of a forfeit.

Sigma Chi Alpha defeated the Falcons 38-33 in the third game. Reynolds of Sigma Chi Alpha led the scoring with a total of 17 points, while Reinsteins scored 16 points for the losers.

Prediction Results

Another weekend of college football passed into history with its resultant devastation apparent in the "campus prediction" standings. After much mathematical deliberation on the part of the statistician, the standings read as follows:

As all of us know, intercollegiate sports comprise a major part of all college activities. State College, although a comparatively new college, has fielded teams and competed in athletics for the past three years maintaining the status of an independent team rather than a conference member. Last year through the concentrated efforts of Dr. Morton Renshaw, dean of student personnel and Mr. Ferron C. Lossee, director of athletics, L. A. State College applied for and was granted admission to the California Collegiate Athletic Association. Our entrance into this conference makes it mandatory that we field teams that will make a representative showing in competition. In the past these athletes who have participated on various teams have not been shown the proper consideration that is actually due them. By this I mean the faculty as well as the students have not been behind them. Any athlete who travels with a team is bound to miss a few classes as well as an exam now and then. This fact should be taken into consideration and the team member should be allowed to take make-up exams when the need arises. The majority of athletes at State College are here for one purpose and that is to complete requirements for their degree, sports providing a secondary interest. In many cases their grades fall below average due to the time that is spent engaging in intercollegiate athletics. I hope that with the inauguration of this semester and our direct entrance into conference competition that the faculty will be more considerate and aid the athletes in every possible way.

Campus Interviews on Cigarette Tests

Number 5...THE GNU

"I gnu the answers...but I wasn't talking!"

The debating team couldn't make much use of this non-talkative baby...but one look at his "literary leanings" tells you that tests don't buffalo him. Specially those tricky cigarette tests! As a smoker, you probably know, too, that one puff or one sniff—or a mere one-inhale comparison can't prove very much about a cigarette!

Why not make the sensible test—the 30-Day Camel Mildness Test. You judge Camel mildness and flavor in your own "T-Zone" (T for Throat, T for Taste) ...for 30 days. Yes, test Camels as a steady smoke and you'll see why...

More People Smoke Camels than any other cigarette!

Music departments sponsor concerts

The Los Angeles State College and City College music departments are jointly sponsoring an Inaugural Concert Series.

Folk songs of South Africa and other lands will be the first of the programs scheduled in the series, beginning Nov. 15, in the City College auditorium. The singing balladeers, Josef Marais and wife, Miranda, will present their interpretation of ancient minstrels, songs from the African veldt, and other international folk ballads.

Marais and Miranda have entertained in England over the the British Broadcasting Company and over the National Broadcasting Company, here in America. They have also been featured on the Meredith Wilson program and in motion pictures. Marais provides his own accompaniment for the ballads with his guitar.

Admission for City and State College students is 60 cents and 90 cents including tax with activity cards. The price for the general public is $1.20 and $1.80. Tickets are on sale at the City College business office only.

Taafe returns at end of tour

Six weeks of study in Spain last summer was the reward received by Johanna Taafe, chosen from among 5 other State College students, as winner of the $1410. del Amo scholarship.

Former student of Dr. Bonhard and Dr. Reed, Miss Taafe, who received her General Secondary Credential in 1950, was enabled to do graduate work at the University of Madrid. Nine other del Amo scholarship winners from Southern California represented U.C.L.A., U.S.C., Pomona, San Diego, and Loyola.

While in Spain, studying local history, art, and folklore, Miss Taafe visited Granada, Seville, Barcelona, and made a trip to Paris. She says she was much impressed with the cultural background and places of historical interest and feels it is essential for any student of Spanish, especially prospective teachers, to visit Spain.

As one of the ten students chosen annually by the del Amo Foundation to participate in the Spanish Student Tour, Miss Taafe found Spain a well regulated country with a great deal of charm. The people, she notes, are honest, cordial, and conservative.

Notice of the scholarship was issued last March. It was awarded on the bases of grades received in Spanish courses, one letter of application and two letters of recommendation by faculty members.

Tanksters invade Cal Poly today

The Diablo iron men, the water poloists, now reduced to a ten man squad invade the Cal Poly of San Dimas plunge today at 3:30 pm for a tiff with the Broncos. The local record includes 2 wins and 2 losses after Tuesday's clash with the Oxy frosh in which the locals shellacked the frosh 10 to 0. High man was Lloyd Jones with 4 goals. In Division B of the Southern California Water Polo Conference the locals have won 2 out of 3 games.

Dave Merlin will be lost to the squad for several days due to a kick in the face received during last Friday's game with Cal Poly of San Luis Obispo. Merlin required three stitches to sew up the injury.

The Mustangs won the splashfest 7-3. Diablo Louis Jones was fouled out of the rough match when he committed his fourth and last offense in the middle of the second quarter. Sprint forward Bill Ramsey accounted for all three local points.

Coach Bud Wise heaped praise on his goalie, Harold Venger. "Venger is the best performer on the club and is the best goalie I have seen during the season." Venger is a transfer from the City College squad on which team he won all Western State Conference honors.

Led by Jones with five goals, the locals scored their first victory of the season by dunking the UCLA frosh and junior varsity squad by 14-3. Sheldon Munach and John Jones put in two counters apiece with Dick Fletcher, Ramsey, and Joe Alhanati adding single scores.
