

Summer Session Registration Today

By TOM DEBLEY
Managing Editor

About 4500 are expected to turn out for summer session registration today, according to Dr. John A. Morton, Dean of the summer session. An estimated 3700 students registered for the first session during pre-registration on June 3.

Registration will be in the Gymnasium from 10 a.m.-7 p.m. and students should enter from the north-west entrance.

Since registration will be conducted according to a time schedule based on the students last name, Registrar Edward A. Maljanian said students should have identification, such as a drivers license, or a student body card.

Maljanian said there will be about 40 workers handling registration plus the faculty advisors and it will take only about an hour for students to register.

Students should be careful not to register for the wrong classes, Maljanian said, because they will not be able to drop those classes today.

If a student does register for the wrong class, he must wait until tomorrow to drop it and will lose "at least $18.50."

Tomorrow is the deadline for students wishing to apply for graduation or for credentials.

Students who wish to change their program or register late may do so in the Gym tomorrow from 11:30 a.m.-8 p.m. Late registrants must receive approval from an advisor in order to enter classes.

Tomorrow is also the day the refund penalty begins. The schedule for registration, according to the beginning of last names, is:

Kl-L 10 a.m.
M-Ml 10:30 a.m.
Mn-Ph 11 a.m.
Pi-Q 11:30 a.m.
R-St 12 noon
Su-Z 12:30 p.m.
A-Ch 1 p.m.
Ci-Gh 1:30 p.m.
Gi-Kh 2 p.m.

Open registration is from 2 p.m. to 7 p.m.

Kennedy Aide At Graduation

Frank Mankiewicz, newly-appointed press assistant to Senator Robert F. Kennedy (D-NY), addressed the 1966 commencement of Cal State L.A. last Saturday in the Stadium.

Mankiewicz, who joins Kennedy later this month, has been with the Peace Corps for the past 4 years, most recently as regional director for Latin American programs. His 9:30 a.m. address to the 3,400 candidates for graduation was titled "The Generation That Will Not Take 'Yes' for an Answer."

The commencement class, largest in the 18-year history of Cal State L.A., included 2,700 students who were awarded bachelors degrees, plus 700 who earned masters degrees. CSCLA's first graduation was in 1948 when the college was known as Los Angeles State. Seven students graduated that year.

The 1966 commencement program included welcoming remarks by President John A. Greenlee and recognition of honor graduates by Dean of Students Edmond C. Hallberg. Brief comments were made by former A.S. President Felix Gutierrez and former senior class President David McNutt.

The commencement class held its graduation ball at 9 p.m. in the Royal Crest Room of Burbank's Pickwick Recreation Center.

Summer Session Is Open to All Adults

More than 800 college-level courses will be offered by Cal State L.A. this summer to any adult over 21, to all high school graduates, and to veterans of military service taking advantage of the new G.I. Cold War Bill which went into effect June 1.

Summer classes at Cal State L.A. will be offered during 2 6-week sessions, June 20-July 29 and August 1-September 9. Registration will be 10 a.m.-7 p.m. on the first day of each summer session.

Summer School Dean John A. Morton said it is not necessary to file for formal admission to attend summer sessions except in the case of graduate students, where matriculation is necessary if units are to apply on a Master's degree. A bulletin outlining all summer classes is available by writing the Summer Session office or by calling 224-3501.

Veterans with a minimum of 6 months military service after January 31, 1955, are eligible to enroll under provisions of the new G.I. Bill, which provides one month of educational assistance for each month's service, up to a total of 36 months. A single veteran will be compensated at the rate of $100 a month for full-time study.

Registration fees at Cal State LA for all summer session students is $18.50 per unit, plus a student activity fee.

Draft Information to Be Sent to Male Students

All male students are expected to receive letters of information about draft boards and records of grades before the end of the month.

Additional information may be obtained from Registrar Edward Maljanian in AD. 43 or at ext. 2163.

LEG WORK - With a Polish couple dancing an Obelek, one of the many songs and dances that will be interpreted by Westwind at 8:15 p.m. this Friday in the Theater to raise money for the student lounge. Songs, music and dances from Russia, Spain, Scotland, the Balkans and the United States will be presented. A folk dance demonstration will also be given at noon this Wednesday in the main quad.

Students Get Federal Funds

A new economic program designed to assist deserving and eligible students with their financial needs has come to Cal State L.A.

The Educational Opportunity Grant (EOG) will be effective for the 1966-67 academic year.

The EOG program is specifically designed for those students with "exceptional financial need," according to Waldo Banks, coordinator of financial aids. This "need" refers to those students who lack the financial means to remain in college without financial assistance.

The amount of the stipend ranges from $200-800 per academic year, and is initially determined by the extent of financial assistance available to the applicant from his family, present assets or other sources.

The applicant must also demonstrate satisfactory academic progress in all work undertaken at CSCLA, maintain fulltime academic status and give indication of good citizenship.

Applications will be available until September 9 for the fall and spring semesters.

Outstanding Prof Does It Again

Outstanding professor Hudson Roysner, 54, did it again by being awarded the "Trustees Outstanding Professor Award" for 1966.

The $1000 award was announced by the Board of Trustees of the California State Colleges last month in recognition of both teaching skill and professional accomplishment.

Also named was Abraham P. Nassiter, professor of history at San Diego State College.

Roysner, professor of art, was named among 10 selected as "outstanding professors" by the students of Cal State L.A. at the Honors Convocation in April.

He is known on the CSCLA campus for his creative work in bronze and precious metals. He has been a faculty member since 1954.

A committee of the Trustees, meeting in San Luis Obispo, also recommended schematic plans of $8.7 million for new buildings at Cal State L.A.

Cash Grant to Student

A Cal State L.A. history student, D. Caulfield of La Puente, has been awarded a fellowship grant of $22,300 from the National Defense Education Act.

Caulfield, a graduate student at Cal State L.A., will use the funds to work on his doctorate degree at the University of Wisconsin. Upon completion of his studies he plans to teach American Colonial history.

Caulfield, 33, received his bachelor's degree in social science from Cal State L.A.

in 1965, graduating with high honors. He completed advance work in February of this year at CSCLA to earn a master's degree, also with high honors. He is employed as a part-time history instructor at La Salle High School, Pasadena.

Grades Due Friday

Grades for the Spring semester will be available Friday, June 24, in front of the information window of the Administration Building from 9 a.m.-4:30 p.m. Students must present their I.D. card from the Spring semester.

After this date grades will be mailed directly to the students.

I WONDER WHY THE CALIFORNIA REAL ESTATE ASSOCIATION FOUND IT NECESSARY TO PROTECT A RIGHT TO DISCRIMINATE ON THE BASIS OF RACE, RELIGION AND CREED?

MAYBE THEY'RE JUST PATRIOTS!

Editorials

Silence Breeds Contempt

A 20-year-old University of Oregon coed, Annette Buchanan, will go on trial for contempt of court June 27 in Eugene, Oregon. She is the managing editor of the Oregon Daily Emerald student newspaper.

Miss Buchanan wrote an article concerning the use of marijuana by students. She promised the students she interviewed that she would not reveal their names.

The story drew the attention of Lane County Dist. Atty. William Frye. Miss Buchanan was ordered before a grand jury and was asked to reveal the names of the students interviewed. She refused and was held in contempt of court last Wednesday.

Two questions are involved in this case. Should the relationship between a newsman and his source be considered confidential, as is a relationship between a lawyer and his client? Should a news source be allowed to remain undisclosed under the self-incrimination clause of the 5th amendment?

Some states, including California, already have laws which protect the confidential relationship between a newsman and his source. This is only right under the 5th amendment which protects the individual from incriminating himself.

Whether it be in a court or in a newspaper or through the newsman, a person should be protected from incriminating himself. The newsman has a right to report news without fear of being held in contempt if he cannot reveal his news source.

We hope the courts of Oregon will follow the lead of other states and find Miss Buchanan not guilty, thus protecting the rights of newsmen (and newswomen) in that state the way they are protected in other states.

Faculty Wants Study

Recently the Cal State L.A. faculty voted 334 to 110 for more study regarding the change to the quarter system. This shows, by a 3-1 margin, the faculty is opposed to current plans for a change.

The faculty of the entire State College System has been slighted in the area of salaries for a long time and because of this many professors have been lost.

It may happen that this change to the quarter system may have a similar effect and we cannot afford to lose any more teachers than we are already losing.

In the area of cost there are still other problems to be solved. The Coordinating Council for Higher Education and the State Department of Finance claim the quarter system will cost the state less. Yet others argue the cost will be greater.

Originally, the conversion of the entire State College System was to be completed in 1974-75, but this date has been changed to 1970-71.

With these and many other problems unsolved, the problems of converting to the quarter system, or any other system, should be re-studied in greater depth.

Scribbler On The Roof Camping Out

By SANDY GOOD
Entertainment Editor

"It's so bad, it's good."

This is the rallying cry of the new cult called Camp, whose followers pitch tenets instead of tents, prefer "the scene" to scenery and scoff at the natural as "no where."

Camp is a craze, a cliché, a manner of speaking. It's a means of rising above it all by putting it down—and "it" can be anything and everything the camper chooses.

Batman is considered a classic example of the worst the cultural scene has to offer, and has therefore earned the accolade of "high" Camp. Others on the list include Mrs. Miller, the John Birch Society, Nancy Sinatra's voice and Phyllis Diller's face. Hollywood, to the In group, is Camping Grounds West.

Camp demands the worst and is delighted to get it. It idolizes the inane and lionizes the ludicrous. It's the newest set of standards for people who have none, and it's swept the hip set from student union to dis-cotheque.

The appeal is simple and straightforward: anything that's terrible must be great, and the more terrible it is, the better.

Inevitably, as the movement gained in popularity it also gained in explanations, contradictions and corrections. Suddenly nostalgia became a concomitant of Camp, and it was defined as an amused and sentimental look at the past. An example is the current UCLA classic film festival entitled "Summer Camp."

Nothing could be farther from the truth. Camp decries sentiment and its amusement is limited to mockery. What Camp lacks is a sense of humor to overcome the nihilism of favoring the futile and the false.

Without standards or concrete goals, the Camp movement is ultimately self-defeating and utterly without redeeming social significance. All it has to offer is a good laugh—on itself.

Cheers and Jeers By Hook or By Crook

Editor:

Looking back on 6 years of education my only advice to an incoming freshman is get your grades anyway you can. This includes cheating, cramming, cribbing, borrowing exams, rote memory work, brown-nosing, etc.

Many screams and raised eyebrows will result from this utterance, but lets look at the facts. If your grades are low you will get drafted. A 2.0 GPA is required to stay in college. In order to enter the competition for the better national fellowships which are available a 3.5 is required.

For the regular college scholarships a 3.0 is required to enter the competition. For a National Defense Loan at CSCLA a 2.5 is required in order to be eligible to apply. If you get a C in a class most teachers won't write you a recommendation and many won't if you get only a B grade. If you wish to transfer to another college or enter graduate school, your admittance rests solely on your GPA.

Now in the business world, your starting salary and your chances on getting a job depend on your grades. The large corporations will not give you an interview if your grades are low. At other companies your starting salary is directly related to your grades.

Nothing has been discussed about knowledge or thinking ability in all the above cases because they do not matter. The only thing that matters in all the above cases is the grades. My case rests, dear freshman, get your grades anyway you can.

Editor:

I would like to have an opportunity to comment on the letter by Stephen Weiss in the 5/23/66 edition of the CT. This is not in defense of my colleague's (Dr. Ulmer) position, but rather a response to some of Weiss' comments.

It is, I think, a fact that many "western" psychologists entertain an objective framework for reality. An increasing number of workers (myself included), however, are beginning to recognize the importance of the Personal World, the subjective reality that we as individuals must depend upon to go about the business of living.

My quarrel with Weiss is based upon my belief that any sudden confrontation of a person's subjective reality can have disastrous effects. This is simply because the individual may be so characteristically self-deceiving and "insulated" from his true self, that a sudden exposure to his true intra-psychic dynamics may be a terrifying experience indeed.

I have never had the opportunity to "take a trip" alone or with a "guru" or guide. I am led to understand, however, that such "trips" can provide unimaginably insightful experiences—it is possible to see our true self in a clear, unadorned way, free from the little distortions we ordinarily use to defend ourselves.

My question is: Can we say with some certitude that we will be able to accept that self which we see so clearly when we come "home" from our trip? Conscious heightening drugs do just that—they make us more conscious of an intrapersonal world that many people never have a chance to know. They do not always provide us with the capacity to reorient ourselves to the new found reality and conduct ourselves in accordance with it.

My feeling is that a new found reality that is hastened or forced upon an individual through the use of psychedelics may, in fact, leave the person with no "anchor points" to depend on when he comes "home" from his "trip."

I am at once fascinated and fearful of the possibilities of these new facilities for awareness. I feel a need, however, to share my concern regarding self-acceptance with you. I am told that the black market traffic in LSD is rapidly making the question of "to use or not use" an individual matter.

If this be the case, my concern may be of some value to those confronted with that decision. Know only that the "real" you, unfettered and unadorned, may not be immediately palatable if suddenly forced down your throat.

Temmer Appointed Admissions Director

Harold E. Temmer, associate dean and Director of Admissions and Records for the University of Illinois' Chicago Circle campus since 1946, last week was appointed Director of Admissions and Records for Cal State L.A., it was announced by President John A. Greenlee.

Temmer, who assumes his new duties here on Aug. 1, succeeds Robert B. Callahan, now Peace Corps program director at CSCLA.

Educated in Illinois, Temmer's specialization include mathematics, physics and philosophy. He has served as acting executive director for the Illinois State Scholarship Commissions and as state coordinator for the American College Testing Program (1959-63).

Temmer

Working with Temmer here will be George L. Stebbins Jr., who continues as Admissions Officer, and Paul (Van) Aikman, Coordinator of Institutional Relations.

Activities with Oriental Accent Set by Roper

Summer activities with an Oriental emphasis have been planned by Jim Roper, head of the summer division, and the convocations commission. A lecture series on Asian affairs and a Japanese film festival have been scheduled.

Dr. Windmiller of UCLA, an authority on Southeast Asia, will lead off the series with a talk on Vietnam on June 23. Current events in India and Pakistan will be covered on the 28th by the Honorable Mohammed Yunus, consul-general of India in San Francisco.

Indonesia is the topic to be discussed by Dr. Guy Pauker of the Rand Corp. on June 30.

Another UCLA man, Dr.

Von Grunebaum, will speak on Islam July 7. "The Red Shadow in Asia" is the subject of Dr. No Yong Park's lecture of July 14. On the 19th, "Chinese Religions" will be explained by Dr. Lawrence Thompson.

Dr. Kaplan of the University of Michigan will lecture on the 22nd on "Human Nature and Destiny in Asian Philosophy." The final speech will be delivered on the 25th, when Dr. Alan Watts speaks on Eastern religions.

All lectures will be given at noon in the Music Hall.

A fashion show in the new Student Lounge will be presented at noon Friday. The Tony D'Ana Trio will appear at noon July 5 in the Cafeteria.

New Economic Program To Aid Needy Students

Five hundred students attending Cal State L.A. are expected to volunteer up to 6 hours each week beginning August 1 to work with economically and culturally deprived Mexican-Americans and Negroes under terms of an unusual Federal grant awarded to the college.

The government grant marks the first time that Federal funds have been given jointly to the student government organization of a college and the faculty to work with the disadvantaged. The project is also novel in that students will make a concerted effort to aid the aged and small businessmen in poverty-stricken neighborhoods.

Known as EPIC (Educational Participation in Communities), the Cal State L.A. project will tap the resources of more than 100 on-campus student organizations for participation in the college's war on poverty, said Marguerite Newgarten, coordinator of student activities.

Miss Newgarten said in addition to a stepped-up tutorial program for high school students and drop-outs, the Cal State L.A. project will call upon accounting students to teach principles of bookkeeping to small businessmen in economically backward neighborhoods and that home economics majors will be asked to go into the homes of the poor and aged to assist in upgrading living standards.

Student political groups will be asked to conduct voter registration drives in East Los Angeles and Watts, educating residents of those areas as to their rights and duties as citizens.

A recently-activated project of transporting culturally deprived youngsters to weekend field trips in Southern California will be expanded.

To coordinate activities of EPIC, a community involvement center is being created on campus, said Dr. Robert V. Brass, director of student activities and housing. This center will be staffed by several full time workers who will be compensated through an initial one year federal grant of almost $64,000 which is being matched by local funds amounting to more than $23,000.

Folk Dancing

Westwind Blows in Friday

By SANDY GOOD
Entertainment Editor

Those who can't make it to the Continent this summer, take heart. A dance presentation with a European bent will be on stage 8:30 p.m. Friday when Westwind blows into the Theater.

The Los Angeles International Folk Ensemble, under the direction of Cal State L.A. student Anthony Ivancich, includes an orchestra, chorus, and technical crew, in addition to the 40 dancers.

"The aim of the group," explained Ivancich, "is to present folk material in an ethnic manner as authentically as possible."

This demands a lot of research into the elements of various nationalities, ranging from historic background and costuming to variations in tonal scales.

Costumes are the easiest to study because much has been written about them.

"We study one piece of an outfit at a time," said Ivancich. "There's material to consider as well as style and symbolic meaning."

Most folk costumes developed during a specific period in time and were preserved by migrating groups.

"We try to be as explicit in costuming as possible, because a different style of dress creates a different feeling in the dancer," he added.

Asked to direct the Ensemble last February, Ivancich accepted the offer because of his feeling for folk dance.

"This is something I enjoy. Learning of other peoples enriches my background and my understanding of what goes on around me. The study of dance ethnology is a means of gaining such a background. It's a study of folk culture within the framework in which it is being reproduced.

"And, of course, dance is a method of expressing such feelings to others."

The Friday show will include a Spanish suite featuring a "tuna" serenade and a bolero. Ivancich learned many of these dances while attending a professional school in Madrid, Spain.

Besides Russian and American suites, the show will also feature a Scottish segment. By special arrangement, the Southern California chapter of the Royal Scottish Country Dance Society will perform to the accompaniment of a thistle band.

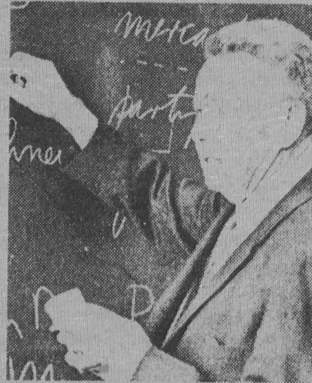

The Folk Dance Ensemble appearance is sponsored by the CSCLA International Folk Dancers.

Folk dancing has a bad image, Ivancich explained, because it has been stereotyped. He feels that a different impression emerges when people go to the folk dance coffee houses and actually participate in the activity.

To go along with this idea, the Ensemble is offering a demonstration noon Wednesday in the Quad, in which everyone may join in the dancing.

Prof to Study in Europe

As a follow-up of his sabbatical of 1964, Irvin Borders, associate professor of journalism, will return to Europe in order to enhance his knowledge of European and historical typography.

With Borders on his 2-month trip will be his wife Helen.

"One purpose of the trip is to examine examples of papers and contemporary printing processes," said Borders.

"In 1964 I visited such places as the Gutenberg Museum in Mainz, Germany.

"This trip I hope to see some of the things I missed.

"I hope to continue studying early Greek and Roman inscriptions. Most of my time will be spent in the Mediterranean countries doing this."

Borders explained that in addition to familiarizing himself with European typography, he would benefit from exposure to European languages.

"I hope to gain an increased knowledge of earliest communications and a greater familiarity with contemporary European publications," he said.

Diablo Signs Contract with Rams

By MIKE RUBIN
Sports Editor

In football, the proof of a team seems to be how many members sign contracts with professional teams. Proof of the Cal State L.A. Diablos quality was shown again June 8 when end Perry Parks signed a contract with the Los Angeles Rams of the National Football League.

Parks, a 6-4, 240 pound senior, still had a season of eligibility remaining when he signed the Rams contract.

Diablo football coach Homer Beatty has, with the signing of Parks, now lost the services of 2 eligible players. The first was George Youngblood, who also signed a Rams contract. Youngblood was a linebacker and end for the Diablos for the past 2 seasons.

The senior end will most certainly be missed by the Cal State L.A. squad next fall. Last season Parks was named to the AII-CCAA (California Collegiate Athletic Association) and Associated Press Little All-America teams.

In the post-season Camellia Bowl game Parks, who was the 14th round pick by the Rams, received the Golden Helmet award for being the outstanding lineman of the game. The Diablos won the game 18-10 over UC Santa Barbara.

Parks' loss will not only be felt on the defensive team, as he was slated for offensive duty also next fall. In his only appearance on offense, in the annual Varsity-Alumni game this spring, Parks caught 2 passes for 30 yards and had another for 62 yards called back.

A story in the June 9 edition of the Los Angeles Times said Parks decided to skip his final season for "personal reasons" and according to a Rams spokesman "his decision met with the approval of Diablo coach Homer Beatty."

"The Rams said that, I didn't," was Beatty's reaction to the Rams spokesman's statement.

"I did not give my OK," said Beatty, "but what could I do?"

GOT IT - End Perry Parks (87) snares a long pass for the varsity in Varsity-Alumni game this spring as Jess Willard (26) moves in. This was Parks last appearance in a Diablo uniform. (Photo by George Wagener)

"I don't blame him (Parks). With this merger (the merger between the American Football League and the National Football League) it meant a lot of money to him."

Beatty continued: "The Rams contacted me and I explained that we needed him. We lost a good football player."

Parks played prep ball at Manual Arts and played at East L.A. College before coming to Cal State L.A.

Tennis Team Ties For 2nd in NCAA

"Way down upon the Sewanee River," that's where it was "1963, 1964, 1965, you're out" for the Cal State L.A. tennis team and the National Collegiate Athletic Association college division championship.

After winning the national championship 3 years running a combination of an unfamiliar playing surface, an unheralded challenger from the east, and the 'luck of the draw' combined to knock the Diablos from the championship.

The tournament, held in Sewanee, Tennessee, was won by Rollins College of Winter Park, Florida. Rollins finished with 17 points, 5 more than runners-up Cal State L.A. and Cal State Long Beach.

"The clay courts were unfamiliar to us whereas Rollins, a team we knew nothing about, played on that type surface all year and finished with a 25-1 record to boot," commented Coach Scotty Deeds on his return from the south.

"We were hurt considerably in the draw, having to face many of Rollins' men in the early rounds, including Bob McCannon, an unseeded player, who upset our number 2 and 8th-seeded John Norgauer in the 2nd round, 6-1, 2-6, 6-4. John had drawn a bye in the first round so he didn't even score a point," continued the disappointed coach.

As far as the Diablos were concerned, upsets were the order of the tournament. Number 1 ranked Joe Huey of Cal State L.A. lost to unranked Jay Leistner of Mississippi College in the quarter-finals, 6-2, 2-6, 6-3; while unranked Bill Hoyt, the one Diablo who was able to adjust to the clay courts, battled to the semi-finals only to lose to McCannon, 6-2, 6-3.

Prospects for next season are bright, with 2 mainstays of this year's team, Karl Haase and Niesl Sie returning. Aiding the tennis effort will also be the former state junior college champion from Pasadena City College, Larry Collins. Collins was unable to compete this year due to an arthritic condition. Sie, only a freshman, was ineligible for the nationals, while Deeds rates Collins in the same category as former Diablo national champions Gary Johnson and Gil Rodriguez.

Golfers Hope for Championship

By MIKE RUBIN
Sports Editor

Last year the Diablo golfers missed by the slim margin of 10 strokes in their bid for the National Collegiate Athletic Association championship. This year they feel they've got the opportunity to go all the way.

The NCAA tournament starts June 22 at the Stanford University Golf Course in Palo Alto, and although the Cal State L.A. squad has had a 6-week layoff coach Rod Faurot doubts the month-and-a-half vacation has dulled his team.

"We're good enough so that the layoff won't hurt us too much. We ought to be at our peak for the tournament. Besides, all the fellows have kept active in outside meets."

Active is right. Four of the Diablo team members have won tournament championships during their "break." Arne Dokka, who finished 3rd in the NCAA last year, won one of the monthly tournaments at Griffith Park firing a 69; Bill McCormick won the Long Beach City championship; Bill O'Connor won the Santa Barbara City championship; and Rick Divil won the Laguna Niguel Invitational.

The Cal State L.A. team topped their season with a first place California Collegiate Athletic Association finish. In 7 tournaments this year the Diablos have picked up 3 firsts, 2 seconds and 2 thirds.

In dual matches, the Devils rolled to an impressive 18-6-1 record, not including an unofficial win over Stanford on the championship course.

Hopefully filling out the Diablo contingent to Stanford will be CCAA champion Kern

Ellsworth. Ellsworth has been sidelined since the conference meet with tendonitis and is a doubtful competitor. If he is unable to go Ron Moore will replace him.

"There are a number of teams to beat in this tournament, and by any appraisal we have to be listed as one of them," concluded Faurot.

Women Golfers Chase After National Title

While the Diablo male golfers are in the running for the national championship, the Devil staffers also have a chance for a national title.

Play in the Women's Collegiate Golf Tournament at Ohio State starts today and Cal State L.A. will be represented by co-captains

Ann Fulkerson and Bonnie Burn, who, between them, have won 4 tournament titles this year.

Coach, Dr. Anita Fisher, rates the pair an outstanding choice to win this, the 25th annual national tournament in Cal State L.A.'s first appearance.

Grads Cited for Activities

The highest award given by the student body of Cal State Los Angeles to fellow students—an honorary life membership in the Associated Students—was presented at the BOD awards banquet May 23. The students, all of whom have been actively engaged in Cal State LA student functions, include:

Jonathan D. Adams, business administration major.

Mike Antonovich, social science major.

Susanna Judd, recreation education major.

Norman Schwab, art major.

Gary W. Wilson, geology major.

Rodger H. Comstock, criminology major.

Outgoing A.S. President Felix Gutierrez and incoming

A.S. President Ron Robinson spoke at the awards banquet. Both reviewed their roles and ideas in student government and Gutierrez closed to a standing ovation.

Summer Jobs Open in Europe

Thousands of summer and full-time jobs are available in Europe through the auspices of the American Student Information Service.

Salaries ranging to $400 a month offer opportunities to carry out President Johnson's request to "Bring those dollars back to the U.S."

Americans working in Europe work under the same conditions and receive the same wages as the Europeans with whom they work.

Job opportunities include resort work, office work, sales work, factory work, construction work, hospital work, child-care work and camp counseling.

Interested students should write to Dept. IX, ASIS, 22 Ave. de la Liberte, Luxembourg City, Grand Duchy of Luxembourg.

Inquiries must be accompanied by $2 to cover the cost of material, handling and airmail postage of a 36-page booklet which gives full details about available jobs.

The ASIS, in addition to locating jobs and obtaining all necessary working papers for applicants, will give a travel grant of at least $250 to every American college student who is placed.
