

Uncertainty Cloaks NSA Scandal

By BONNIE EPSTEIN
CT Staff Writer

A.S. President Ron Robinson may want to get Cal State L.A. out of the National Student Association (NSA) because of the recent disclosure of the student group's ties to the CIA. He said if NSA were a "trumped up assembly" that merely propagated, he wanted out.

He plans to write a letter to NSA for information on the group's financing and areas of activities.

"If they don't want to cooperate with this request, I see no reason why we should belong to the group," said Robinson.

Robinson said if he is refused, he will support going to the summer convention of NSA to request changes.

It looks as if Robinson will not be alone in making investigations of the group. President Johnson yesterday afternoon ordered "a careful review of any governmental activities that may endanger" the "integrity and independence" of America's educational institutions.

His order came after it was disclosed by the Washington Evening Star yesterday that there are at least 4 student organizations that had received millions of dollars in secret aid from the nation's chief espionage agency.

The 3 reported by the Evening Star are the U.S. Youth Council, with headquarters in New York, the World Assembly of Youth in Brussels, Belgium and the International Student Conference in Leiden, Netherlands.

The interesting fact connected with these supports of both NSA and the U.S. Youth Council is that the CIA is by its charter forbidden to engage in domestic activities.

Not only did they engage in domestic activities by supplying these funds, but the CIA is reported to have been instrumental in securing draft deferments for NSA members.

"No NSA staff members were drafted," reported Ramparts Magazine, "The Central Intelligence Agency looks after its own."

The issue that Ron Robinson and many other parties across the country is suspicious about is not so much that the CIA had been giving money to the group as the fact that no one had known about it until 3 days ago.

The fact that secrets have been kept makes Ron and others like him wonder just how much the CIA is controlling things. "They say they aren't, but who knows?" said Robinson.

This is not the first time that the question of who runs what at NSA has come up on this campus.

Back in Fall 1965 the BOD was making studies to determine if Cal State L.A. membership in NSA was worthwhile.

By a 6-5 vote the BOD voted in November 1965 to withdraw from NSA and then passed a motion to investigate opportunities for membership in the Associated Student Governments, a smaller student government group.

The central point at issue then was the political action by NSA.

Opponents of NSA membership argued that the congress should confine itself primarily to student orientated problems and not to national or world ones.

Speaking against the continued membership, Tom Brewer, then graduate class president, said the last convention he had attended, held in Madison, Wis., could have been concluded in 3 days instead of 2 weeks if discussions had been confined to school problems.

Delegates were forced, he said, to hold midnight sessions in order to discuss school problems because the issues were not scheduled for debate during the daily sessions.

"I can't vote and say all students on this campus are against the war in Vietnam -- or that they're for it," he complained.

Prominent Civic Leaders Discuss Youth in Politics

By BILL COFFIN
CT Staff Writer

The spotlight was on youth yesterday as civic leaders discussed "Youths role in Politics" in the Trident Lounge.

Completing the first day of a 2-day program was a speech by Congressman George C. Brown, Jr. (D-29). This was followed by a panel discussion among Mrs. Carmen Warschaw, former southern California chairman of the Democratic party; Robert Abernathy, west coast director of NBC news; and Edmund Hallberg, Cal State L.A. dean of students.

Mrs. Warschaw said there is a basic difference in the type of representative that youth wants and the type that older people want. "Age seeks security, youth seeks opportunity," she said.

One of the big problems that results from this difference is a suspicion of government, said Mrs. Warschaw. "The most appalling thing to me is the mistrust of government by youth today," she said. Mrs. Warschaw said one reason for this mistrust is the highly publicized government invasions of privacy.

Mrs. Warschaw defended the American system of government, however, saying: "the great majority of politicians are good, hardworking and dedicated. It's easier for others to be against than for."

Robert Abernathy spoke 2nd in the panel discussion. The news commentator has been a Washington correspondent and overseas correspondent, and is now west coast director of NBC news.

"You students today seem to crave less oratory and more involvement," said Abernathy. "At your Political Forum I was deeply impressed with how unimpressed you were."

Abernathy felt that youth, as future voters, will influence the country in 2 strong ways.

"I suspect that this generation that remembers Da Nang will be more selective in getting involved internationally." The United States in future years will be more reluctant to extend itself as much as it has since World War II, he said.

"The 2nd way that youth will influence the country is that now, for the first time

Orozco Slated Today, Pat Brown Possible

By MERRY DELBRIDGE
CT Issue Editor

Former Governor Edmond G. "Pat" Brown may make a surprise appearance today during the 2nd session of the panel discussions on "Youth's Role in Politics."

Bill Orozco, recently appointed to head Governor Reagan's Los Angeles office, will begin the program at 11:30 a.m. in the Trident Lounge. He will be followed by a panel headed by the Rev. Bill Shatz at 12:30 p.m., and Bob Morgan, Los Angeles area coordinator of the John Birch Society, at 1:30 p.m.

The program, sponsored by the senior class, is designed to give students and faculty an informal opportunity to ask questions of prominent civic leaders. Mike Dye, senior president, also stressed the importance of a slate that includes all areas of political ideology.

Orozco was narrowly defeated by Congressman George C. Brown (D-29) in the November election, and has since been appointed to direct the Los Angeles office for Governor Reagan. Brown spoke to a large audience yesterday, and it should be interesting to see what his former opponent has to say today.

Orozco began his political career by campaigning for the Eisenhower-Nixon Republican ticket in the 1952 presidential race. He made speeches to East Los Angeles residents, labor groups and Mexican and Latin-Americans for Congressman Glenard Liscomb in 1953, for Rockefeller in the 1964 presidential primary, Goldwater-Miller in 1964, Senator George Murphy in 1964, Evelle J. Younger and Peter J. Pitches.

Ramparts Editor To Talk Friday

Robert Scheer, managing editor of Ramparts magazine and outspoken authority on Vietnam, will speak at noon Friday in the Theater.

Scheer has traveled in southeast Asia, Cuba and eastern Europe. He is the co-author of "Cuba: Tragedy in Our Hemisphere," and is author of "How the United States Got Involved in Vietnam," published by the Center for the Study of Democratic Institutions.

The topic of Scheer's speech is "Perspectives on Southeast Asia." A private luncheon will follow the speech.

Scheer ran as a peace candidate in the 7th Congressional district (Berkeley) against incumbent Jeff Cohelen. He lost but collected 45 per cent of the vote.

tive in civic and youth activities for many years. He is chairman of the Tuberculosis and Health Association, the Spanish Language Radio and T.V. Committee and has been chairman of the Greater East Los Angeles Committee on the Aging. He is presently a member of Mayor Sam Yorty's Citizens Advisory Committee, District Attorney Younger's Advisory Council and was active in scouting and Catholic youth groups.

Morgan, who will speak at 1:30 p.m. studied engineering at Auburn College in Alabama and Colorado University. He worked as an engineer in the California aircraft industry for 22 years and then did volunteer work for the Birch Society after he became a member in 1962. In the summer of 1965 he resigned from Lockheed and became a full-time staff coordinator for the society. He is married and has 4 teenagers.

The Rev. Bill Shatz, with moderator Edmund Hallberg, Dean of Students, will head a panel discussion at 12:30 p.m. The other panel members will be the Rev. Dan Towler, ECM; Ben Cohen, director of Hillel Council; and from UCLA, the Rev. Jim Donaldson and the Rev. Les Atkinson.

Shatz is well known for his recent trips down to Sunset Strip to talk with teenagers. A graduate of Annapolis, he attended the Eton Theological Seminary and then came to California in the summer of 1957. Shatz and Towler head the CSCLA Ecumenical Campus Mission, which is in its first year of experimentation.

Stan Jones: A Dull Name, But Prof Leads Rapid Life

By DAPHNE LUM
 CT Staff Writer

Different names connote different things. Take the name H. Stanley Jones. Such a name suggests dullness.

Take his occupation. Certified Public Accountant. Dull again. But don't take H. Stanley Jones at face value.

For 5 years he was in business with his own accounting firm. In January of this year, his firm merged with another, forming one with 8 partners.

For the last 3 years, he has been city treasurer of Inglewood. He is seeking re-election this year.

Since 1964 he has been the vice chairman of the Republican County Central Committee, and was re-elected to that position last year.

In addition, he finds time to teach Principles of Accounting and Federal Income Taxes, 2 evenings a week at Cal State L.A.

H. Stanley Jones. Dull? Not quite. In fact, this isn't all of this ambitious young man's list of credits. Married for 17 years and the father of 3 children, Jones, a tall, crew cut gentleman, was born and raised in Decatur, Ill.

At 18 he was the co-owner of a grocery store. At 19 he became the owner of a general insurance agency and accounting practice. Why?

"I wanted to go into business for myself, so I bought the business," Jones said.

His military assignment after the Korean conflict brought him to this state, and he decided to stay.

Now that his firm has merged with a larger firm, Jones said his job as a CPA will mean client contacts and speech making rather than handling detailed financial problems.

Politics is a large part of Jones' life. As the vice chairman of the Republican County Central Committee, Jones was active in last year's election campaign.

His role involved getting local as well as statewide candidates elected. Jones' pleasing manner and charm were employed in campaign efforts for Ivy Baker Priest, Huston I. Flounoy, Robert Finch and Ronald Reagan.

As Inglewood's City Treasurer, Jones doesn't receive much salary. His salary totals $50 a month, but the position is part time and requires only 6-8 hours a month.

Jones keeps in phone contact with various banks and savings and loan firms to build up the city treasury. His record has been impressive. City money has increased greatly during his tenure.

His decision to run for such an "unglamorous" job was based on his belief that someone qualified should be in office.

Running against an older man who was only a certified accountant, Jones won by a 2-1 margin.

Jones' hard-hitting campaign, with much personal contact, made the people realize that despite his youth his position as a CPA meant he was the more qualified person.

This energetic young man, who is affiliated with 12 different social, fraternal, professional and civic groups, has a definite viewpoint on voters and campaigning.

Future Teachers

Future teachers may satisfy certain requirements by participating in the on-site teacher education opportunity program next semester.

Four units credit for Education 411, a required course for a standard secondary teaching credential, will be allowed to students who take part in the program.

Assignments will be made through Carol J. Smalenburg, an associate professor of secondary education, during her office hours in N.H. A2052. Students will work at Jefferson and Roosevelt high schools, Hollenbeck Junior High and at all schools adjacent to the Santa Monica and Golden State freeways.

Assignees will spend 8 hours a week in classroom and school activities. They also will meet in a seminar one hour each week.

Further information is available in the secondary education office, N.H. C2096.

Draft Exam Scheduled at UCLA, USC

The Selective Service Qualification exam will be given on Mar. 11 and 31 and April 8, 1967, at USC and UCLA.

According to the Selective Service, the test presupposes no schooling beyond the ordinary high school preparation for college. The scores on the test will not necessarily determine eligibility for the draft.

Currently there is no firm policy relative to granting students deferments. In a letter sent out by the American Council on Education, dated Mar. 17, 1966, students may be deferred if it is found to be necessary to the maintenance of the national health, safety or interest.

Since 1951, the regulations covering the deferment of undergraduate students provided that a student in his freshman year would be required to be in the upper half of the male members of his class in order to qualify for deferment in his sophomore year.

In his sophomore year he is required to be in the upper two-thirds of his class to be deferred for his junior year and in his junior year he was to be in the upper three-quarters of his class to qualify for a deferment in his senior year.

Cal State L.A. this fall filed some 4,500 of the SSS109 forms for students. So far this spring about 2,600 forms have been filed. Normally the SSS109 form need only be filed once a year. But, according to V.M. Dickerson, registrar, many students file forms once a semester or more just to keep their draft boards informed.

Mrs. Creed now does most of the handling of the SSS109 forms at CSCLA. She said that most of the forms filed by students are processed in one day.

Mrs. Creed said that the volume of forms has increased greatly in the last year. Only a year ago the secretary of the registrar used to handle most of the forms. Now it requires someone full time.

Mrs. Creed said that they have run into some odd situations with some draft boards. She said that last semester they sent out many of the SSS109 forms before classes had started and some of the draft boards sent them back calling them fake.

This semester all the forms that had been filed were not sent out until the first day of classes.

Jones

"Voters are apathetic. They don't get interested in politics and they don't want to be involved. I want to get them interested, involved and know what they are voting for," he said.

If all the financial aspects were disregarded, Jones would prefer teaching.

"I enjoy teaching. I get personal satisfaction from contact with those who are learning. It is challenging because you know what you are talking about and you can convey this to others," he said.

He was graduated from UCLA in 1955, "cum laude," with a B.S. in accounting. He was awarded his MBA in general management from USC in 1962. This go-getter who has "always wanted to be self-employed" is eyeing the post of state treasurer. How will he get elected?

Exposure to the public through speeches, literature, pictures, financial backing and, of course, personal contact with the voters, he said.

Most important is getting to the apathetic voter.

"Their votes count just as much as anyone else's. I have to get them to know me," he said.

At the rate he is going, he probably will.

The race to the moon almost seems tame to Edison.

We're racing Southern California.

In the next 10 years, we'll serve an estimated 2½ million more people.

The race to keep pace, electrically, demands creative engineering of the highest order.

Edison is completing a nuclear generating plant at San Onofre, California. In fact, our staff is already making plans 20 years ahead. Under study: thermionics, thermoelectrics, magnetohydrodynamics, and other methods of direct conversion that show promise for tomorrow's power systems.

Sound exciting enough for you?

NSA Scandal

Yet the side in favor of staying in NSA had the strong voice of then A.S. President Felix Gutierrez fighting to stay in the organization. He contended that NSA acted as an information center for student governments, was a program starting agency, provided a meeting ground for students from all national regions, and provided articulation for student opinion decided at the national conference. Yet Gutierrez said NSA was not needed as a political forum for CSCLA students, because a group called the Student President's Conference already served that purpose.

Robinson, then junior class president, argued the allocation of funds paid to the national congress and on the voting power of individual schools.

"Much of NSA money is spent as directed by the congress, added Gutierrez.

Decisions by NSA are always mandated up to the council leadership for action, rather than down to individual school members, said Gutierrez. Minority reports are given by member schools against the majority policy.

This majority policy of NSA has met some criticism. Conservative Fulton Lewis Jr., writing for the L.A. Herald Examiner in 1965, charged NSA with being ultraliberal.

Lewis claimed NSA had endorsed admittance of Red China to the United Nations, denounced American escalation of the Vietnam war, and praised Fidel Castro for his educational reforms.

When membership in NSA was put before the student body as a whole the issue passed. Gutierrez then summed up the general student attitude saying the political aspects of NSA are not of prime importance for Cal State L.A. students. More important, he said, was the opportunity of meeting with other student representatives from around the country.

Dues that the BOD must pay for membership in NSA are usually about $275, but the expense of sending representatives to the national convention is closer to $1,000.

Getting back to the question of NSA's connection with the CIA, Eugene Groves, NSA president, issued a lengthy report Monday in which he said officers and employees of the organization had neither carried out "intelligence functions" nor provided "information of a sensitive nature" to any government agency.

Government sources said the subsidy was established and maintained at a time when Communist governments were sponsoring a host of youth congresses around the world and a need was felt, within the CIA, to have the American student position represented at these meetings.

Although CIA payments to NSA at one time exceeded $100,000 a year, in recent years the subsidy has declined to less than $50,000 annually.

NSA has more than 300 member colleges in the United States and is affiliated with some 60 student groups overseas. It has a 50-man staff that is headed by Groves, who is paid a salary of $4,000 a year.

MOBILE DONATION - KTTV's Bill Welsh, left, gives President Greenlee the keys to the T.V. unit Channel 11 donated to CSCLA.

Mobile TV Unit Gift From KTTV

Mobility has been added to the Cal State L.A. department of journalism and broadcasting with the gift of a television mobile unit from KTTV Channel 11.

In addition to the unit and 2 cameras, the gift included monitors, audio equipment, power supplies, lenses, generators, a switch with fader amplifiers, cables, a power transformer and other related equipment.

The cameras are image-orthicon, a professional type, and, according to Donel Price, assistant professor of broadcasting, are rarely found in collegiate broadcasting departments due to their expense.

The mobile unit and equipment, according to Price, will be employed in 4 areas. Primarily, it will be used for instructional television services of all kinds. Programs on library orientation can now be taped at all areas of the campus. Previously this service had been limited to N.H. Lecture Halls 1 and 2, due to the special wires that were required to transmit the program back to the broadcast studios.

"We can now go into the psychology or science labs and tape special programs," Price said. The mobile equipment will also be used for classroom purposes. Previously, classes in speech 150 had taped student speakers in the studio for replay and individual criticism. Now this service can be provided by the broadcast crew in the individual classroom.

Taping of programs, teacher observation, special speeches and news of the entire Southern California area can now be made off campus. The mobile unit will be employed to record these functions and return them to CSCLA.

Finally, the mobile equipment will serve to enlarge the department of journalism and broadcasting. Students in the department will receive the experience of doing remote taping.

CSCLA is the only state college with such a mobile unit, according to Price. Broadcast engineers are in the process of rearranging the equipment within the truck to serve the functions of the college. After the equipment is replaced and a coat of paint given the unit, the mobile truck will be ready to operate.

"This will be an important part of the instructional effort in all departments as well as journalism and broadcasting," said Robert Sherwood, assistant professor of broadcasting.

Youth in Politics

in our history, we will be in a position to solve such problems as smog and water pollution."

The commentator echoed Mrs. Warschaw's statements on professional politicians.

"Let me make a solemn plea. Government is not an enemy of the people. Don't see politicians as good guys or bad guys."

The progress of government is accomplished by compromise and dealings, said Abernethy. Stubborn political ideologies can only impede effective functioning of government, he said.

"The means to an end in representative government is compromise. You may find that the best politician is often the least committed."

Abernethy took a slap at President Johnson for not being able to "get across to the public."

Abernethy ended by hinting to a trend of the future.

Our future will be determined more and more not by what we choose but what is developed by science, he said.

Dean Hallberg ended the panel. "Youth today seems to be more interested in the individual," he said. Hallberg said today's generation is looking for a closer relationship with its fellow man and its environment.

"Everything has to be now for you people," said Hallberg. "This is a 'now generation'." This is due in part to the knowledge explosion in recent years, he said. As a result youth have a tendency not to look to authority as much as it has in past years, said Hallberg.

"You're empiricists," said Hallberg. "You're only going to accept proof on the basis of experience." Youth will not let others tell them "how it is" he said.

This is the age of the active, informed and involved student, said Hallberg.
