

Greeks becoming conservative

By MARYLOU ORCHOLSKI
U.T. Staff Writer

Membership shows slight rise

In 1965, approximately five per cent of Cal State L.A.'s campus was Greek, that is, belonged to a fraternity or sorority. Over the years, however, that figure has decreased to one per cent.

The decline of members was due to the radical outlook that fraternities had attained, as well as their so-called ritualistic beer busting parties and low scholastic achievements. Today, however, the trend has changed back toward a more conservative outlook.

Stewart Hsieh, public relations coordinator for the Greek Council on campus, said that membership for social fraternities is up "17 to 20 percent."

"The modern fraternity stresses high standards of scholarship, leadership, and loyalty," he said,

"and in order to join a fraternity or sorority, one must have and maintain a 2.0 grade average."

The social fraternity can trace its lineage to secret societies of colonial days.

Phi Beta Kappa, organized Dec. 5, 1776, at the College of William and Mary in Williamsburg, Va., was the first to use Greek letters.

Phi Beta Kappa later became an honor society. A protest against the secret societies led to the first anti-secret social fraternity, at Williams College, in Williamstown, Mass.

It took sororities until the period when women were first being accepted into the state-supported universities to thrive. Fraternities helped many of them to establish. This brought about the brother-sister relationship common today.

Currently, there are four sororities on campus: Alpha Theta Pi, Delta Sigma Theta, Delta Zeta, and Theta Gamma Chi.

CSLA also encompasses ten major national fraternities: Alpha Gamma Omega, Kappa Alpha Psi, Lambda Chi Alpha, Omega Psi Phi, Phi Sigma Kappa, Sigma Alpha Epsilon, Sigma Nu, Tau Kappa Epsilon, Theta Chi, and Zeta Beta Tau.

Recently at CSLA, the Interfraternal Council (IFC) and Panhellenic joined together, combining fraternities and sororities in an attempt to attain greater strength and to make the Greek organization more viable to students," said Hsieh.

The Student Activities Office provides great assistance to fraternities. Dick Simpson is the present adviser for the Greeks.

"Although the fraternities on campus are social, they devote a great deal of time to community services," he said.

Lambda Chi Alpha recently received a letter of commendation from the office of Los Angeles mayor, Tom Bradley, congratulating it on its successful children's day programs.

Sigma Alpha Epsilon received the Golden Boy Award, also complimenting its devoted services.

The Greek blood drive, held recently on campus, proved to be the most successful drive in the history of California campuses.

Alumni from fraternities and sororities contribute more to education than any other organization.

Hsieh said the American College Fraternity Survey Bureau from the L.A. vicinity recently found that 83 per cent of fraternity members graduate from college, which is higher than any other campus organization; and that 60 per cent continue to graduate school.

Presently, there are 150 active social fraternities across the nation, with a total of one million members. At CSLA, there are currently 300 fraternity and sorority members.

Spring rush will be conducted the first two weeks of next quarter. An attempt to recruit new members, as well as new fraternities and sororities, to this campus will be pursued.

CAMPUS SWEETHEART — Miss Bunny Ellis, with her escort Adolphus Tuck, receives a bouquet of flowers for her being named Cal State L.A. Campus Sweetheart. Miss Ellis was honored at halftime of the CSLA-U.C. Santa Barbara basketball game, and will reign as campus sweetheart for a year.

Will aid handicapped scholarships

Wheelchair game set Friday

The San Fernando Valley Hawks, a trouping all-star team of wheelchair athletes, will play members of the Los Angeles Rams in a fast-paced game of wheelchair basketball in the Cal State L.A. gym on Friday, March 15, at 8 p.m.

The event is sponsored by the Handicapped Student Affairs Center on campus in an attempt to raise money for scholarships, facilities and programs for that department.

According to Gary Klein, Assistant to the Coordinator for the Center, "It is really the first time for any department on campus to actually go out and attempt to raise money for programs within their department."

And that's only the beginning, Klein says. He and the HSAC have a variety of other plans for events to get money into the handicapped student services.

The game of wheelchair basketball is played nationally, as well as around the globe. It is full of thrills and ranks as a first rate spectator sport.

By playing a team of pro athletes, the Hawks hope to prove that it is ability not disability, that counts.

The team of all-stars puts on a wonderful show of dribbling, shooting and ball-handling exhibitions, not to mention the hilarious comedy routines that they

There appear to be several conflicting stories in the recent death of Cal State L.A. philosophy professor Dr. Alfred B. Glathe.

The 55-year-old professor was found dead in his San Gabriel apartment last Thursday by a colleague, Dr. Arthur J. Benson, who had been trying to reach Dr. Glathe by telephone since Tuesday. Dr. Benson was unavailable for comment.

According to the L.A. Times (Friday, March 8) the Gabriel have perfected for their audiences.

Some of the Rams who will be in the wheelchairs on the basketball court are Tony Baker, Jack Snow, Larry McCutcheon, and Jack Youngblood.

General Admission tickets to the basketball game will be $2.50. Students and faculty of CSLA can purchase tickets for $2.00.

Stories conflict on professor's death

Police said "the apartment had been virtually demolished in the course of what appeared to have been a fight." The Times also stated that Dr. Glathe was "beaten to death."

The Alhambra Post-Advocate quoted Detective Milai of the San Gabriel Police Department as saying, "We are investigating the cause of death. There is no physical evidence as to why he should have died."

Philosophy department chairman

The Cal State L.A. Engineering and Industrial Studies building may be renamed Franklin Tower, after Benjamin Franklin, if the Campus Planning and Beautification Subcommittee approves the change.

Dr. Richard G. Lillard, chairman of the English department and sponsor of the proposal, will represent the groups in favor of the redesignation when the subcommittee meets April 9.

"The present name of the building does not adequately represent the diversity of interests housed in the tower. It seems both reasonable and fair to designate the office tower in such a way that no particular group is identified and yet most groups accommodated," Dr. Lillard said in a memorandum to the subcommittee.

He said the present name is confusing for students as there are other departments in the building besides engineering and industrial studies.

The English and political science departments occupy rooms and offices in the tower as does child development and health and safety of the School of Fine and Applied Arts.

Dr. Lillard said the idea for the new name was suggested to him by Dr. Jack Rathbun, professor of English and chairman of the American studies department.

Dr. Lillard immediately liked the change and explained in the memorandum that Franklin was a talented man "whose interests spanned the disciplines housed in the building." The departments against the name change are engineering and industrial studies.

Overdue loans may cause aid denials

By ROBERT B. CORSUN
U.T. Staff Writer

Students who find it necessary to apply for emergency loans at the Financial Aids Office for registration purposes may have their request turned down, due to an overwhelming number of students delinquent in repayment of their loans.

According to Ms. Betty Smith, coordinator of the emergency loans and a Financial Aids counselor, "The overwhelming number of delinquent emergency loans has severely hampered the servicing of deserving students for the 1974 spring quarter."

"Because of this," said Ms.

Dr. Donald Burrill concurred with this explanation. "The whole thing is being handled as if there was foul play, but it is my opinion that it was accidental. There were no lacerations on the body," said Dr. Burrill.

Dr. Glathe had been with the philosophy department for 12 years. He was primarily a logic professor and was currently teaching courses in Logic and Metaphysics.

Dr. Lillard said after a lengthy meeting the two groups opposed the new name because they felt it would be a loss of identity for them. "It is understandable they would feel that way. Their opposition to the name will pull a lot of weight at the committee meeting," the doctor said.

Other minor changes Dr. Lillard proposes are removing the lettering which refers to engineering and industrial studies from the outside of the building and replacing it with the Franklin Tower name and also erecting more attractive signs which would list the occupants of the building.

Smith, "students denied emergency loans may have to register late or drop out of school completely for the spring quarter."

At the present time about $48,000 is on loan, said Ms. Smith.

"If the delinquent loans are not repaid," said Ms. Smith, "many donors to the emergency loan fund will not continue to contribute when they receive an accounting of the delinquent loans."

Ms. Smith also said that if the loans are not repaid, the Financial Aids Office might be forced to discontinue the service, unless other ways are found to secure emergency loan money.

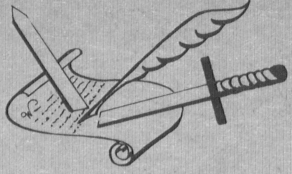

Ms. Smith urgently requests students owing overdue Cal State L.A. Foundation loans to repay them immediately so others can benefit from the service.

Ms. Smith said she does not care how the money is paid back, just so long as it is.

"The Financial Aids Office will even accept weekly or monthly payments of $5, if that is all the student can afford," said Ms. Smith.

If students fail to repay their delinquent loans, then their records and permits to register will be held up until repayment is rendered in full to the Financial Aids Office, said Ms. Smith.

Hearst kidnap starting panic

By GEORG SPINNATO
U.T. Staff Writer

The kidnaping of 20-year-old Patricia Hearst on February 4 is a sign of a worldwide political kidnaping epidemic which is spreading from Europe, South America, and the Middle East to the United States.

Millions of dollars have been paid for ransom money to terrorist groups in the form of cash, food, tools, school supplies, medicine, ambulances and hundreds of political prisoners who have been freed and flown to foreign country sanctuaries.

Approximately two dozen U.S. diplomats and businessmen have been kidnap victims of terrorists overseas, of which four have been slain.

The kidnaping of Patricia Hearst, the grand-daughter of the newspaper chain executive, William Randolph Hearst, by the Symbionese Liberation Army is the first sign of such political action spreading from the rest of the world to the United States.

The Hearst kidnaping has not only alarmed top newspaper editors, but also politicians and wealthy business executives in the United States.

Unlike the kidnaping of Atlanta Constitution editor Reg Murphy, by William and Betty Williams, who were seeking the ransom money for their personal use, the SLA not only hopes to feed all the poor people in California, but they also seek the release of two SLA members on trial for the murder of Oakland school supervisor Marcus Foster.

The efficiency of our FBI in action was shown in the Atlanta Constitution kidnaping case by arresting the Williams only five hours after Murphy was released in Atlanta.

After a month, the SLA still remains untouchable with the life of Miss Hearst in its hands. Patty's parents haven't heard anything from her nor her SLA kidnapers for the past two weeks. No one can imagine what misery and sorrow Randolph Hearst and his wife have been going through during the past month.

Without hesitation, owners of the Atlanta Constitution paid $700,000 ransom money for Murphy's release. The Hearst Corporation offered to pay an additional four million dollars when Randolph Hearst said he could not pay more after giving two million dollars to the "People in Need" food program in the San Francisco Bay Area.

If the "People in Need" program is carried out completely, it will be the largest sum of money ever paid for a kidnap ransom in the history of the United States.

The Hearst kidnaping followed by the Reg Murphy kidnaping should prove a warning sign not only to the wealthy people but everybody in our country. No one knows who will be the next victim or how much ransom and other demands will be.

We may more than likely see an increase of kidnapings spread across our nation if the present lenient laws remain concerning kidnapers.

If the U.S. Supreme Court doesn't act soon in re-establishing the death penalty for kidnapers, we shouldn't be surprised if others follow the examples of the Hearst and Murphy kidnapers.

The plight of the consumer

Editor:

Do you ever wonder what's happening in this country? If you are not waiting in a mile-long line for gas, you are trying to figure out how to pay for the groceries.

It has to make a person wonder about facts concerning the consumer's plight.

This is the function of CALPIRG. It is an organization geared to in-depth research of relevant problems within the community, including environmental questions, discriminatory practices, and consumer abuse.

If the idea of a local action group serving the public interest catches your imagination, why not stop by and become involved? The more students participating, the more effective will be our efforts to focus on problems important to the entire community.

We who are involved with CALPIRG on this campus will be pooling our resources with students from other campuses in the L.A. region. Why not become an active citizen??

Thanks given for article

Editor:

On behalf of my staff and myself, I would like to thank the University Times for publicizing the Feb. 11 article, "Three Easy Steps to a Career."

I was impressed with M.F. Winterbottom's interview and writing skills, and his ability to cull out the main element of our career counseling process.

In the past, it has been my experience that the U.T. did not quite print what I thought was said.

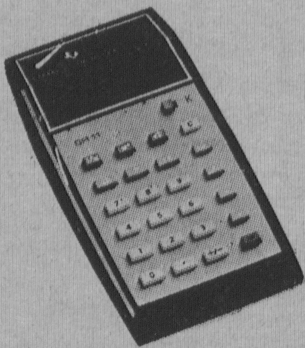

This time, the quotes were accurate, and the story well-edited.

From our point of view (although I suspect the placement center director might not agree fully), the article truly represented one of the services our center offers, as well as presenting the possible use of the career information library.

Thanks again to M.F. Winterbottom and the staff.

Master plan revision approved by system

A master plan revision for one campus and schematic plans for buildings at two other campuses were approved by the Board of Trustees of The California State University and Colleges.

The actions were taken during a meeting at Cal State Sacramento, by the Trustees' Committee on Campus, Planning, Buildings and Grounds under a delegation of authority to act on behalf of the full Board.

Deletion of two residence halls and provision for additional recreation facilities for existing residence halls comprised the revision to the Sacramento campus master plan approved by the Trustees.

Schematic plans were approved for a College Union Building at Cal State Sonoma, and for a Drama Department Scene Shop at California State Stanislaus.

The 30,113 square-foot union at Sonoma is proposed for occupancy in September 1976. Estimated to cost $1,562,100 in non-State funds, the three-level structure will include an auditorium, lounge areas, meeting rooms, a child care center, a food service area, and game and hobby rooms.

The scene shop at Stanislaus is planned for completion next November. Constructed of reinforced tilt-up concrete, the 3,600 square-foot structure is expected to cost $100,171.

An informational item was presented by Vice Chancellor Harry Harmon indicating highly favorable construction costs in the California State University and Colleges in comparison with other public and private higher education institutions.

Crisis isn't hurting this 'service station'

The effects of the energy crisis aren't being lost on anyone. A Lutheran church in Canoga Park has posted a sign outside which says: "This service station open every Sunday."

Saenz column...

My wife has wanted a child for some time and I've noticed the look of happiness on her face every time she thinks about the baby or stares down at her bulging stomach.

Having a child worries us a little because of the responsibility involved. We'll be shaping the character of that child and if we muff it, he will go out into the world a miserable person to make other people miserable. There are too many miserable people in the world. We need more happy humans to contain the mounting disease of violence, hate and greed that is encircling the earth like a great black cloud.

My wife and I agree that the hardest part about being a parent is deciding how much to restrain the child and when to let him have what he wants. A delicate balance must be maintained or else he will turn into a pest instead of a blessing.

Parents have lives of their own and it's going to be hard to share ourselves with the child, but he'll need guidance and protection and who else is going to provide it?

I know my wife will meet her duties and I will too, except for one thing. I have already told her that she will be in complete charge of diaper changing. I'll love my baby, but I certainly won't love everything he does.

8.9 per cent

BOT proposes faculty pay hike

Trustees of the California State University and College system have recommended an across-the-board raise for academic personnel in 1974-75 of 8.9 per cent, with an additional 4.3 per cent hike in fringe benefits.

A resolution urging the unusually high raise for the 15,000 faculty members and administrators was passed last week by the trustee's committee on faculty and staff affairs which met in San Francisco with power to act for the full board.

The motion, which was opposed by Chancellor Glenn S. Dumke, now goes to Gov. Reagan and the state legislature for final action.

Reagan's 1974-75 budget includes a 5.45 per cent salary increase for academic employees, but allows no hike for fringe benefits.

Dumke had urged trustees to stick to the formula normally used for determining raises, based on salaries at comparable colleges across the nation. He proposed a 4.35 per cent salary boost and a 4.26 per cent fringe benefit.

But spokesmen for employee groups argued anything less than an 8.8 per cent pay increase would be unfair, since the cost of living for the current year is estimated to be at least that high.

Evelle's consumer hint: contracts

SACRAMENTO — There is a State Law protecting the consumer who makes purchases in his home, State Attorney General Evelle J. Younger says in his weekly consumer hint.

This law allows you three days to cancel any contract for more than $25 whether you pay in cash or on time. The company has to supply you with a form which you can tear off and send in. That form has to include on it the date you signed the agreement and the date by which you have to send in the form.

We challenge you.

Our Officer Selection Officers are looking for a few good college men—maybe 3 out of 100—who will make good Marine officers. If you're one of them, we'll give you a chance to prove it during summer training at Quantico, Virginia.

Our program is Platoon Leaders Class, PLC. With ground, air and law options. You might even qualify for up to $2,700 to help you through college. But if money is all you're looking for, don't waste your time.

The challenge is leadership. If you want it, work for it. If you've got it, show us. It's one hell of a challenge. But we're looking for one hell of a man.
